Grave Fears Entertained

By the British

London, Sept. 29.—Grave fears for a recurrence of general warfare in Europe as a result of the Near East crisis are occupying the minds of British official circles. It is stated in authoritative quarters.

The protracted and frequent cabinet meetings which have been going on for the last few days, all have been for the purpose of taking every possible step for the prevention of such a conflagration.

It is explained that these fears are based on the relations known to exist between the Angora government and soviet Russia, and the potentialities of such relations.

The whole British policy, it is stated, is to keep the Turks from crossing the Dardanelles into eastern Thrace because it is maintained that in this event fighting would certainly occur and the whole of the Balkans would be drawn into the struggle. It is declared emphatically that such a crossing will not be countenanced.

Turks Anxious To Fight British

Constantinople, Sept. 29.—Events are approaching a climax. The Turks have occupied the entire neutral zone on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, with the exception of the Chanak area, around which they have established infantry units in a semicircle, virtually investing the British lines.

The Turkish cavalry squadrons are retiring and the British troops who are in strong force at Chanak are ready for what may happen.

Meeting Is Asked

In these circumstances, General Harrington, the British commander-in-chief, has sent a wireless message to Kemal Pasha at Smyrna, asking for an immediate personal meeting. He leaves the choice of place to Kemal, whose reply is expected momentarily.

Yusuf Kemal Pasha, the national foreign minister, is understood to have gone to Angora to submit the allied joint note to the nationalist assembly, but in the meantime Turkish concentrations are being pushed with the greatest speed.

Ships and Planes Ready

British reinforcements are reaching here, and the threatened area. The super-dreadnoughts Revenge and Revolution, the most powerful fighting machines afloat, have arrived in the Dardanelles, while a battalion of North Staffshires and 1,000 men of the British air forces landed Thursday and marched through Constantinople with

Stillman Baby is Legitimate

(By The Associated Press)
Carmel, N. Y., Sept. 29.—James A. Stillman, former president of the National City Bank of New York, was denied a decree in his suit for absolute divorce against his wife, Anne U. Stillman, and Baby Guy Stillman, was declared legitimate in the findings of Daniel J. Gleason, referee in the case which were filed here today.

The referee's decision was a complete victory for Mrs. Stillman. Not only was her defense upheld, but the referee also confirmed her charges that Mr. Stillman had misconducted himself with Florence H. Leeds, former Broadway show girl and that Mrs. Leeds had borne two children.

In regard to Mrs. Stillman's charges that her banker-husband also misconducted himself with two other women, identified only as "Helen" and "Clara," Referee Gleason decided that the evidence was not sufficient to prove the allegations of adultery.

The referee wrote the testimony adduced by Mr. Stillman in support of his charges that Mrs. Stillman misconducted herself with Fred Beauvais, the part Indian guide alleged by the banker to be the father of little Guy Stillman, uncontradicted and unexplained was sufficient to justify him in believing Mrs. Stillman guilty of the charges made against her.

A careful examination, however, of all the testimony, said his report, "has shaken my faith and belief in the testimony of the witnesses called in the plaintiff's behalf."
